Care & Kindness

Hi Everyone,

Last week we all learned to live without electricity and water. Hope everyone doesn't have too much damage. I'm sure there are plenty of stories to share when we meet again.

A big THANK YOU to our elected officials for getting us through a tough week with county updates and help.

We especially want to thank Damon Beierle County Commissioner, Pct. 2 and James Oakley, County Judge, for keeping us informed on our meeting day and ultimately helped us decide to cancel. A big thank you to Dottie who called and texted members who had made reservations, to let them know the meeting had been cancelled. The sidewalk at the Reed Building was already seriously iced over at 9:00 a.m that morning. That is another perk of making a reservation - you can be contacted in case of an emergency.

Our Wine Wednesday was great. So fun to see our new members there. Nancy and Ellen tracked us down on Facebook and not only came out - but joined BCRW! Welcome ladies! And spouses and friends are encouraged to join us.

Our Political Action Alert system is up and going and BRAVO to so many of you who have contacted the Republicans on the Redistricting Committee before each hearing. Your emails and calls HAVE BEEN NOTICED! All our patriots who let me know they have

Looking forward to hearing from our County
Commissioners at our upcoming meeting.
Have questions??? They will answer them.

Please do us a favor . . . RSVP to Carolyn in order to get a correct number of lunches. And as always, feel free to bring or invite a friend.
Note that RSVP day is the Monday before the meeting. (2/8)

Have a wonderful week. See you on the 11th.

TFRW LEGISLATIVE DAY!

We had such a fun and educational day in Austin at the 2021 TFRW Legislative Day in Austin. Interesting speakers and a role play of testifying in a legislative hearing. Governor Abbott talked about his emergency items for the session.

Who had a great day together? Janet, Susan, Gail, MJA, Judy, Joyce and Susan.

January Meeting Minutes

Burnet County Republican Women PAC
Minutes of General Meeting – January 14, 2021
Sylvester H. Reed Memorial Building – Burnet, Texas

Welcome, Call to Order, and Opening Ceremonies: President Mary Jane Avery welcomed everyone and called the meeting to order at 11:35 a.m. A Mexican lunch of enchiladas, tacos, beans, and rice along with dessert was served. Chaplain Sue Boss Lee gave the invocation, and Americanism Chair Carleen Kaurin led the pledges to the American and Texas flags.

Introductions: President Mary Jane introduced BCRW board members, local elected officials, state and TFRW personnel. Guests and new members introduced themselves.

Approval of Minutes and Treasurer's Report: The December 10, 2020 minutes were published in the newsletter. There were no corrections. They stand approved as published. There was no treasurer's report.

Membership Report: Membership Chair Janice Estill reported that we have 7 new members and 6 members renewed their membership today. Mary Jane reminded everyone about the BCRW cards on the table and encouraged us to give them to friends as an invitation to join.

Legislative Report: Legislative Chair Roxanne Nelson gave a report about the Texas legislative session which began January 12, 2021. She stressed that Senator Dawn Buckingham and Representative Terry Wilson are our rural voices in the legislature, and we need to let them know our opinion so they can represent us properly. Members can email or call them. Roxanne distributed on the tables a copy of "County Judges & Commissioners Association of Texas Legislative Priorities." Mary Jane reported that a Campaign Alert will be emailed asking us to call, email, or testify as the session goes on. February 4th is TFRW Legislative Day in Austin. Registration is $85 for all-day seminars. Register on line. She will send an email about this.

Campaign Activities: Campaign Activities Chair Mary Jane Avery reminded us that campaign activities are due. Susan Doyle gave a report of her trip to Georgia and Washington D.C. Mary Jane also gave a report of the block-walking activities in Georgia.

Program: Gail Teegarden along with a video introduced our speaker, Nick Adams. Nick is an author and the founder of a foundation called FLAG, For Liberty and American Greatness. He spoke of a need to rededicate ourselves to our founding principles and teaching Civics and Government in our schools. He would like to see a flag in every classroom, the pledge of allegiance recited every day in every school, and the national anthem played before every sporting event. He said we are in an ideological civil war, and it is time to reclaim our culture. His parents were present at the meeting and helped sell his publications.

Caring for America: Chair Deborah Smith and Carleen Kaurin presented a check for $828 to FLAG. Thank you to those who donated today.

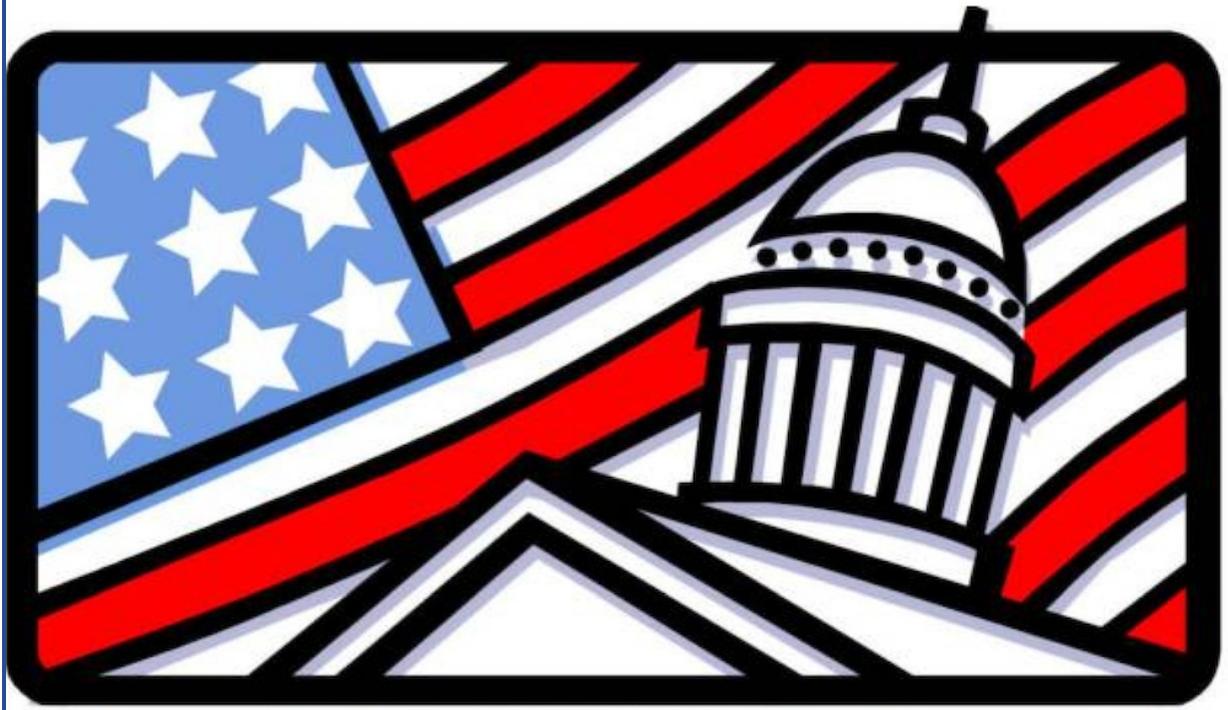

Announcements:

- Thank you to those who helped with the swearing in ceremony.
- Burnet County Republican Club President Londa Chandler announced that the next meeting of the club will be Tuesday, February 2nd at Trailblazer Grille in Burnet. Dinner is at 5:30 p.m., and the meeting begins at 6:30 p.m. Guest speaker is Krysta Walker.
- BCRW Wine Wednesday, January 27, 2021 at Flat Creek Enoteca, Marble Falls at 6:00 p.m.
- TFRW Nuts & Bolts Seminar at the Reed Building on February 27th.
- Donations in memory of JoAnn Meyers can be made to the BCRW Scholarship Fund.
- Sue Boss Lee is chairing Caring Kindness Action. Contact her if you know of members' illness or needing help.
- Thank you to BCRW Vice President Carolyn Alexander and her Hospitality Committee and Kevin for our delicious lunch. Thank you to Gail Teegarden for buying fabric, Judy Gibb for sewing, and Deidra Robertson for monogramming the Hospitality aprons.

Door Prize: Janice Estill won the door prize. The meeting was adjourned at 12:45 with the singing of "God Bless America."

Respectfully submitted,

BCRW Secretary
Darlene Hargett

You might want to go directly to Toni Anne's website to sign up. This email is copied and I don't think the links work. BTW . . . I do the phone call since it's so early.

I again want to apologize that the call last week was canceled, but our conversation with David Bossie has been rescheduled for March 12th.

In the meantime, we want to know how you are doing with your action items! Every week we've been asking grassroots activists to engage in the legislative process. We'd like to share examples and best practices with your fellow election reform advocates. Please send your stories to:

texaselectionsreform@gmail.com

I am looking forward to our conversation on Friday regarding two new bills you should be watching, Texas House Bill 1425 and Texas Senate Bill 130 which are tandem efforts to eliminate the Electoral College.

Don't forget to invite your friends and family who are also passionate about the integrity of the election process!

Election Integrity

Here's Where We Are Right Now On Election Reform

By Mike Huckabee

Democrats in the House are getting ready to force some radical changes to election law in America, as part of what Laura Ingraham has termed a “multi-pronged assault on the GOP’s ability to win back Congress, or maybe even the White House, ever again.” I refer to the atrocious House Bill 1, which is the left’s way of micromanaging their idea of “fair” elections by putting federal officials in charge of what constitutionally should be left to the states. That’s right, everything the Constitution has to say about elections gets to be revised by Nancy Pelosi, AOC and the rest. Heck, maybe Texas will start a lawsuit in protest, as they did with certain states that hadn’t followed the Constitution, and other states will join it. We’ve seen how much good that does.

But a few states are trying to fight back individually with legislation of their own. As reported in the TAMPA BAY TIMES, Florida Republicans are considering limiting the validity of vote-by-mail requests from two election cycles to one. They also want to restrict the number of ballots that one person can bring to a drop-box. There’s the expected resistance, and accusations of “partisanship.” And according to an NPR report (which, being NPR, refers matter-of-factly to Republicans’ “false claims” of election fraud), Georgia Republicans are trying to get rid of early voting on Sundays, limit the number of drop-boxes, and require I.D. for absentee ballots. (Those radicals!) Their bill passed the Georgia senate on Tuesday.

One part of the bill that I particularly like prohibits county elections offices from directly accepting outside funding. Recall that the Center for Tech and Civic Life --- funded by Facebook's Mark Zuckerberg --- and the Schwarzenegger Institute gave them millions of dollars and, in return, were given input on how the 2020 elections were run.

In a move that should surprise no one, the Georgia secretary of state, Brad Raffensperger, withheld support for the measures, calling them "merely reactionary to a three-month disinformation campaign." As Ohio Rep. Jim Jordan pointed out on Ingraham's show, it was this secretary of state "who entered into a consent decree with the Democrats before the election, bypassing the legislature where, constitutionally, you're supposed to make election law."

The House Oversight Committee held a hearing Wednesday on the US Postal Service that dealt in part with the issue of mail-in ballots. After ranking member Ohio Rep. Jim Jordan spoke about the problems, Democrat Rep. Gerry Connolly of Virginia called what he had said "gaslighting," and he condemned Donald Trump as well, for "sowing distrust" by saying last summer that mail-in voting would lead to massive fraud. Still, what happened after November 3, Jordan said, was exactly what had been predicted: that Trump won on election night, there was "chaos and confusion" surrounding the mail-in ballots, and they kept counting and counting for days until Biden was declared the winner.

At the moment, it's in Arizona that we're seeing the most consequential fight, and it's headed -- for sure this time -- to the Supreme Court. The state attorney general, Mark Brnovich, was involved in six lawsuits last year, successfully suing to prevent mail-in ballots from being sent to everyone in Maricopa County. A few days after the election, he wrote to the Maricopa County Board of Supervisors to urge them to more than double the hand audit. And when the Arizona State Senate demanded that supervisors turn over Dominion voting machines for inspection, he filed an amicus brief. In other words, he's on this.

And Brnovich is not letting up. Oral arguments before the Supreme Court are scheduled for March 2 in a case that impacts the efforts cited above by Florida and Georgia to try to take their own measures to combat election fraud. He's battling the DNC. He's also had to deal with a Democrat secretary of state.

This lawsuit -- originally two separate suits but later consolidated into one -- involves two Arizona laws that were passed before the 2016 election to discourage election fraud. One law says that if a ballot was cast in a precinct that doesn't match the voter's home address, it is to be discarded. The other law bans ballot harvesting, with appropriate exceptions for close family, household members and caretakers. The DNC sued over these laws, citing -- take a guess -- racism.

Under Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act, a "substantial" disparate impact on a particular race must be shown to prove racial discrimination. No evidence of this has been presented. Of course, that doesn't stop the left, who don't need evidence to believe that virtually everything has a disparate impact on black people.

Specifically, the district court found that the out-of-precinct restriction had no impact on 99.9 percent of non-minority voters and 99.8 percent of minority voters. (I wonder how they arrived at this, as ballots don't identify a voter as "white" or "black.") Even so, the DNC now wants a definition for the word "substantial." I am not kidding.

As for the ballot harvesting law, the DNC failed to find any evidence of racial discrimination. And 19 other states have similar laws. Also, most states already require voters to cast their ballots in their own precinct.

Ten senators, not surprisingly led by Sen. Ted Cruz of Texas, filed an amicus brief in support of Arizona. The Trump administration did this as well. "This is a key decision," says Rachel Alexander at POLITICROSSING, "because if laws like this can be struck down for being racist, you could make the argument that a lot of election integrity laws could be struck down as racist." For example, if it were determined that a requirement for extra poll watchers was associated with a slightly reduced turnout for blacks, even a statistically insignificant one, that could be considered a "racist" law. Goodbye, poll watchers!

I would add that in such a case, it's not even possible to determine statistically a cause-and-effect relationship between the poll watchers and the voting pattern. It's only a correlation, and a teensy one at that. If the Democrats are allowed to do this, virtually all election integrity laws will be out the window.

Alexander says this is the most important issue we face right now. "The future of our country hinges on this decision," she says. She knows Brnovich, having worked with him in the state attorney general's office before he became AG. Read her full article to see what a hero he continues to be on this issue, in the face of what she calls "horrendous" social media attacks.

Believe it or not, the Supreme Court is actually going to hear a case on election law.

Thank you to Dottie for calling all of our February RSVP list to cancel our meeting due to snow & ice.
